

A Collaborative Workshop for Nonprofit Leaders

When There's No Playbook

Leading Through Complexity & Adaptive Challenges

When the work feels complex and the path isn't clear - this is your opportunity to step back, make sense of what's happening, and lead more effectively.

Event Details:

Wednesday, June 4

1:00 - 4:30 PM

Location:

Basalt Regional Library

Register Now - Free!

Presented by:
Andrea Palm-Porter,
Roaring Fork Leadership's
Executive Director

Supported by: The Denver Foundation through the Belonging Colorado Initiative

Nonprofit leaders today are navigating increasing complexity.

Community needs are evolving. Resources are stretched. Expectations are rising. And while collaboration is often necessary, it isn't always clear how - or when - it actually helps.

Before launching another initiative or adding more capacity, this workshop offers something different: A strategic pause to step back, make sense of what's really happening, and lead more effectively within it.

WHAT YOU'LL EXPERIENCE

- See the Challenge Clearly
  - Distinguish between technical problems and adaptive challenges and why that matters.
- Lead Across Differences
  - Practice listening and engaging across perspectives using proven bridging tools.
- Map the Ecosystem
  - Understand where efforts overlap, where tension exists, and where opportunity lives.
- Find Strategic Clarity
  - Identify where clarity -not more action - is the next right step.

Designed for leaders working across organizations, not just within them.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Many of today's challenges cannot be solved by expertise alone.

They require leaders who can:

- Navigate uncertainty
- Work across differences
- Build trust across organizations
- Discern what the moment truly requires

This workshop strengthens those capacities—so leaders can use existing resources, partnerships, and capacity-building efforts more strategically and effectively.